On Course Management

One of the most difficult things to do in golf is take your improved swing on to the golf course. Playing On Course with Craig is the most productive way to work on course management and the mental side of your game.

Craig will explain how a well organized pre-shot routine, enables you to clearly choose the right shot for each situation. By calculating the right distance, factoring in wind, uphill or downhill, picturing your shot and then focusing on a specific target that is not necessarily the pin. Your only thought when you stand over the ball is to complete a good swing. To take just a few more seconds too work through your pre-shot routine, might save you five minutes looking for your ball.
